

ECO-BUSINESS

Free Energy Assessments

Save money on your energy bills and help the environment

There is a great opportunity for 75 businesses within the Cities of Joondalup, Wanneroo and Stirling to take part in the Eco-Business energy assessment program, offering:

- An analysis of the energy usage of your business – electricity, gas, water and travel
- A fully costed action plan including paybacks for desired actions
- Follow up assessment to review actions implemented
- Energy Accreditation

About the Eco-Business program

The program builds on the highly successful pilot conducted within the City of Joondalup which provided participants with an average annual energy saving of $1195. This equates to a 6.2 tonne reduction in annual greenhouse gas emissions per business.

In order to deliver the Eco-Business program the Cities have partnered with EcoSmart, a company experienced in reducing the greenhouse gas emissions of businesses and households with flow-on financial, social and environmental benefits.

What previous Eco-Business participants said

"The assessment process only took a couple of hours and it stands to save us almost $2000 per year"

"People are definitely more aware of energy use and the amount of time lights are on for"

"I found the process very effective, and your knowledge was very good around both the new building and the existing workshop"

Assessment process

The energy assessment process involves a pre-assessment questionnaire followed by a physical inspection of the business premises. Businesses will then be provided with an energy action plan recommending ways to reduce energy usage. The assessment process is finally completed with a follow-up call between six and eight weeks later to determine how effective the action plan has been.

Participant marketing opportunities

To provide additional incentive, all businesses taking part in the program will be featured in future promotional material and will be provided with an energy accreditation that can be used to market the business.
